

—New Books—

HANDBOOK OF SOFTWARE FOR ENGINEERS AND SCIENTISTS

P.W. Ross (editor)
CRC Press, Boca Raton Fla., and IEEE Press, Piscataway, N.J., USA, 1996, 1557 pages, US$89.95.

In 67 chapters a broad spectrum of topics is covered: platforms and environments, programming, math and science packages and data communications. Math and engineering software is covered in 25 chapters, including TEX, desktop publishing and the use of Internet.

DRIVING FORCE: THE NATURAL MAGIC OF MAGNETS

JAMES D. LIVINGSTON
Harvard University Press, Cambridge, Massachusetts and London, England, 1996, 311 pp., £16.50

This book tells the story of a force of nature – the "natural magic" of magnetism. It unfolds the long and colourful history of magnets and informs and entertains technical and non-technical readers alike and gives them a clearer sense of the force behind so much of the working world.

MINERAL RESOURCES OF CHINA & A SURVEY OF NON-METAL MINERALS INDUSTRY IN CHINA

Han Consultants, P.O. Box 71006, Wuhan, Hubei 43071, China, 1996
The first book is a hardback, 391 pp, US$195.00
The second book: 248 pp, US$185.00

The resource volume is a bilingual (English–Chinese) reference covering 68 minerals: energy, metallic and non-metallic resources. It provides details of explored reserves, geology, conditions of exploitation and utilisation and import/export statistics.

The survey volume is also bilingual and list more than 300 leading enterprises. It provides full address details, director and employee information and product details.