

Corrigendum

Corrigendum to “Availability of ENT Surgical Procedures and Medication in Low-Income Nation Hospitals: Cause for Concern in Zambia”

Lufunda Lukama ^{1,2} Chester Kalinda ^{3,4} Warren Kuhn ¹ and Colleen Aldous ⁵

¹University of KwaZulu-Natal, College of Health Sciences, Nelson R. Mandela School of Clinical Medicine, Discipline of Otorhinolaryngology, Durban 4001, South Africa

²University Teaching Hospitals, Private Bag RW1X, Ridgeway, Lusaka, Zambia

³University of Namibia, Katima Mulilo Campus, Private Bag, 1096 Katima Mulilo, Namibia

⁴University of KwaZulu-Natal, College of Health Sciences, Howard College Campus, School of Nursing and Public Health, Durban 4001, South Africa

⁵University of KwaZulu-Natal, College of Health Sciences, Nelson R. Mandela School of Clinical Medicine, Durban 4001, South Africa

Correspondence should be addressed to Lufunda Lukama; lufundal@gmail.com

Received 20 September 2022; Accepted 20 September 2022; Published 14 October 2022

Copyright © 2022 Lufunda Lukama et al. This is an open access article distributed under the Creative Commons Attribution License, which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original work is properly cited.

In the article titled “Availability of ENT Surgical Procedures and Medication in Low-Income Nation Hospitals: Cause for Concern in Zambia” [1], information was omitted in Acknowledgments.

The corrected section appears below:

Acknowledgments

We would like to thank Yougan Saman, Nadia Lukwasa, Serela Ramklass, Amina Abdulkade, Murray Smith, Sujith Basanth, Tesuven Naidu, and Fikile Mkwanyana for validating the content of the questionnaire. Many thanks are due to the management of the hospitals that participated in the study for their assistance during the field activities. We would also like to thank the Ministry of Health of the Republic of Zambia for the student scholarship offered to Lufunda Lukama to pursue his Master of Medicine in Otorhinolaryngology, Head and Neck Surgery at the University of KwaZulu-Natal. In addition, we would like to thank EDCTP through the TESA II project (Grant No. 1051 TESAI EDCTP-RegNe) for facilitating the “data management boot camp” that contributed to the development of this manuscript.

References

- [1] L. Lukama, C. Kalinda, W. Kuhn, and C. Aldous, “Availability of ENT Surgical Procedures and Medication in Low-Income Nation Hospitals: Cause for Concern in Zambia,” BioMed Research International, vol. 2020, Article ID 1980123, 8 pages, 2020.